FRENCH STAND BY TREATY IN FIXING SILESIAN BOUNDARY

PREMIER MAKES STATEMENT TO CORRESPONDENTS

CABINET IS TARGET

Chamber of Deputies Reconnvenes to Attack Briand's Policy.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Paris—France insists upon the execution of the Versailles treaty in drawing the frontier line between Germany and Poland in Upper Silesia. Premier Briand declared Wednesday night upon receiving newspaper correspondents. He stated further that he maintained the position outlined by himself in his famous answer to the address of Premier Lloyd George before the house of commons on Friday, he declared that invasion of Silesia by German troops would not be tolerated by France.

Mr. Briand said he did not see the desirability of meeting Lloyd George before the house of commons on Friday, he declared that invasion of Silesia by German troops would not be tolerated by France.

Treaty Only Basis
"I have nothing to say except to maintain strictly my viewpoint. France in all this controversy places herself on sole grounds of the Versailles treaty. There is no other basis of discussion possible. On the other hand Briand and Clemenceau are not in a position to make any concession. As Mr. Lloyd George himself will agree to this when the misunderstanding is dispelled."

Deputies Reconnvene
When the chamber of deputies reconvened Thursday after a recess of three weeks, the Briand cabinet was expected to be the center of a concerted attack.

Twelve interpellations were inscribed on the blotter of the president of the chamber when the session opened at 2 p. m.

Rene Viviani, former premier, was prepared to give an account of his recent mission to America.

It was not until the putting of the vote of confidence would be reached before Saturday.

The address of Premier Lloyd George on the Upper Silesian question and the payment by Germany of the first reparations installment of $100,000,000 gold marks was said by supporters of the ministry to have solidified M. Briand's position.

BRITISH WOULD CALL U. S. TO COUNCIL

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London—Newspapers Thursday showed greater unanimity in endorsing Premier Lloyd George's declaration that the British attitude toward Poland and Silesia made Wednesday than they did his almost sensational statements before the house of commons last Friday.

The Morning Post was alone in dissenting from the premier's declaration and in an editorial bearing the caption: "Smashing the Entente," the newspaper maintained its antagonism to Mr. Lloyd George's stand, which it declared to be "fantastic and absurd."

Information received in official circles regarding Upper Silesia states that the British government has been informed the inter-allied plebiscite commission that Adolphe Korfanty has issued a proclamation to the people of Upper Silesia to surrender their arms, resume work and accept military control with the Germans. He declares also that 10,000 men have been demobilized.

ALARM IS AROUSED IN CONSTANTINOPLE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Constantinople—Alarm over the safety of the city is apparently felt by allied officials here. Operations by bandits are assuming serious proportions particularly in Thrace. Large numbers of bolsheviks are arriving and an American embassy is under guard of armed sailors. Turkish nationalists declare that banditry is being encouraged by the Greeks, who, they allege, are seeking an excuse for seizing Constantinople.

Finds Buyer for Pigs

L. Dutcher had some pigs that he knew some one would like to buy. But he did not know enough people to whom he could sell them all. But he did know how he could find them, and find them in the least possible time. He used a Gazette Want Ad.

This ad was ordered for six times but the pigs were sold after the ad had run three times.

"You can do as well if you want to buy something. It is a simple matter to place a Want Ad in the Gazette. Call 77 on the nearest phone and we do the rest."

Gypsy Makes Sure of New $2,000 Wife, Marries Her Under American Laws

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Minneapolis—Tribal difficulties of the Adams and Yans gypsy bands ended here late Wednesday with the marriage of George Adams, Minneapolis, and Albina Yans, Chicago, in accordance with American laws. The couple developed when the groom previously paid $2,000 for his bride, in accordance with gypsy customs, and came to a climax when Mrs. Adams, the groom's mother, was brought into court here charged with abduction after she had kidnapped the bride, when the latter's parents refused to deliver the girl in accordance with the sale to Adams.

When Chicago police advised local authorities to hold Mrs. Adams and Miss Yans, their release was sought upon a writ of habeas corpus. This was dismissed when the Chicago warrant charging abduction was introduced to the court. Bail of $1,000 was set and immediately produced in cash by the two women.

The groom claims that on four previous occasions he had lost approximately $2,000 for four brides which were never delivered, and that he intended to observe the marriage principles in accordance with the American law as insurance against losing again.

Mrs. Adams and the bride were admitted in bail pending the issuance of extradition papers and the marriage ceremony followed.

PRESBYTERIANS IN ANNUAL MEETING

133rd General Assembly Convenes; to Elect New Moderator.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Winona Lake, Ind.—Hope that the church will continue to enjoy great growth in its membership during the last year was expressed at the opening session here Thursday of the 133rd general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America. Dr. Samuel S. Palmer, Columbus, Ohio, retiring moderator, expressed satisfaction with the mark of 1,722,000 members attained last year. Commissioners from the 228 Presbyteries were seated in the great tabernacle.

Late Thursday afternoon a new moderator to succeed Dr. Palmer will be elected. Rev. H. C. Swearingen, St. Paul, is considered as the leading candidate.

ANOTHER PRESBYTERIAN MEETING IN MISSOURI

Greenfield, Mo.—The 31st general assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian church began here Thursday with the opening sermon of Rev. J. E. Cortner, Dyersburg, Tenn., the retiring moderator.

An amendment to the constitution of the church proposing the elimination of all reference to the sex constitutes one of the most important issues before the assembly. The adoption of the amendment would give the women the right to ordain and hold offices in the church.

The world war, the growing divorce evil, juvenile crime, crookedness in business, the use of business methods are part of the price being paid for turning away from the teachings of the Bible, the moderator declared. The Bible is even being lost from the pulpit, he asserted, and warned that the faith of thousands of youths is being destroyed by "prophecies of the new order" who "sell us unobtainable and most of all, they are leading us to a new heaven and a new earth, but have no bearing on the complex problems of twentieth century life."

Irish Resolution Stirs Up a Heated Session; Matheson's Position Stated

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison—Senator Claire Bird's declaration that he would rather go to jail than vote for a joint resolution memorializing congress to take certain action, brings up the question again of these joint resolutions that try to tell congress what to do. It is hard to find anyone that ever heard of congress paying any attention to such a resolution and that any good ever was accomplished except a little politics for the member voting. The Irish resolution is a case in point. There was little opposition to the resolution, largely based, not on any desire that the majority may have had for the real freedom of Ireland but because it was considered good politics to vote.

Matheson's Position
The one man who refused to play politics was Alexander Matheson. His position was that it was no part of the business of the legislature to tell the

I. R. AND RECALL BILLS APPROVED BY STATE SENATE

TWO ADMINISTRATION MEASURES CARRY BY 20 TO 12 VOTE.

SKOGMO DEFEATED

Plan Which Follows Draft Rejected Earlier in Session Is Killed.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison—Two administration measures, the initiative and referendum and legislative recall of appointed officials, were approved Thursday by the Wisconsin senate, although nearly identical measures had been defeated earlier in the session. The recall bill, which has passed the assembly, was sent to third reading by a vote of 20 to 12 after an amendment by Senator Reothe which partially nullifies the measure, had been added. The amendment permits the governor to remove any officer on recommendation of the legislature but prevents the legislators acting independently of the executive.

Highway Bill Killed
The final vote was: Ayes—Anderson, Billington, Burk, Durbin, Clark, Conant, Czerwinski, Donahue, Huber, Kleck, Moran, Nye, Olson, Ridgway, Roth, Severson, Skogmo, Smith, Staudenmayer, and Thielus. Total 22.
Nays—Arnold, Deane, Deyer, Bird, Hirsch, Jennings, Kuckuk, Lange, Morris, Mulberger, Peterson and Verden. Total 12.
Absent—Barnett.

Skogmo Plan Loses
Efforts of Senator Huber, administration leader, to offer a substitute amendment to the Skogmo initiative and referendum resolution failed to the draft rejected several weeks ago, was voted down 17 to 1. His substitute would have permitted 10 percent of the voters to initiate new legislation. Following defeat of the substitute amendment the resolution was engrossed without a record vote.

Charles Political Aid
Accusing members of voting against appropriations merely to make a record for political purposes and ignoring the best interests of the state, Assemblyman Oakes, chairman of the finance committee, requested the house to vote for a square deal for appropriations.

"Our committee holds day and night sessions," Oakes stated, "former chairmen and other members never recovered from the work. It is the privilege of this floor to do as it sees fit, but I really believe that the work we have done should not be hastily set aside."

The assembly voted 54 to 19 to pass the $10,000,000 appropriation for the department of agriculture. The bill requiring the legislature to pass the law within 30 days of its passage, was passed by a vote of 54 to 19.

House Bill Laid Over
The Schafer bill requiring automobilists to stop for further examination was laid over another week for consideration of a substitute amendment. The measure in its present form was declared unendurable by the highway commission.

Assemblyman Burden's bill authorizing county boards to hire experts to reassess tracts of land in a town was laid over for further consideration. Assemblyman Edwards, chairman of the taxation committee, read a letter from the attorney general questioning constitutionality of the measure.

GREEN RELEASED FOR SIX MONTHS

Alleged Embezzler Pleads Guilty to Use of Confidence Game.

Elmer A. Green, alleged embezzler, will have six months in which to pay up his debts around Janesville, through action taken in municipal court Thursday morning.

Green, who has been selling securities here the past year, appeared in court to enter a plea of guilty to the charge of obtaining money by means and use of the confidence game to the extent of $89,000, money of A. D. Post, local shoe store proprietor, who is leaving Green's plea of guilty, Judge St. Maxfield acted upon the recommendation of Dist. Atty. S. G. Dunwiddie that the case be adjourned to November 15.

"Green has a number of debts around town," said Judge Maxfield, "so we are going to see if he can pay them up."

States to Keep Country Dry

Washington—Temporary reductions by two-thirds in the federal prohibition fund forces probably will have little effect upon the country generally, Secretary Mellon said Thursday. The ranks will be recruited to full strength again as soon as new funds are available in July, he said, and the remaining agencies on active duty will be scattered throughout the country. Enforcement of state prohibition laws, Mr. Mellon indicated, would be continued up to keep the country dry in the meantime.

Railroad Men Watch Action on Wage Scale

"It's all up to the heads of the union."

That is the attitude taken Thursday by local railroad men with respect to reports emanating from Chicago that a cut in rail wages will take place around July 1. Talks of any general railroad should the decrease be more than 12 percent, is discounted. However, there appears to be a general undercurrent of dissatisfaction against any reduction, the railroad men are now making both ends meet.

"Will the executives take a lower wage?" is the big question asked, the men stating that they will feel more kind to lower wages in such event.

The regular meeting of the local Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen will be held at Bagley's hall Thursday night. A special social entertainment has been arranged.

FARMERS "STUNG" TAFT MENTIONED IN NEW SALES PLAN TO SUCCEED WHITE

Many in Southern Wisconsin Believed Victims of Chicago Co-Op Firm.

Ex-Premier or Sec. Hughes Prominently Named for Office.

Farmers in Southern Wisconsin who were lured by low prices and attractive terms to cooperative meat and produce plans, on Thursday learned that they had been "stung" in several instances.

Indictments charging 13 individuals and two corporations with using the mails to defraud farmers out of $300,000 were returned before U. S. Judge K. M. Landis in Chicago Wednesday.

The two corporations are the Consumers' Service and Supply company and the Creditors' Protective Bureau, both of Chicago, who have sought transactions with farmers around Chicago. Judge Landis issued bench warrants for the defendants in the $300,000 bonds.

The indictments charge specifically that the Consumers' Service and Supply company advertised to supply farmers with all farm materials and household goods sold by mail order houses at from 5 to 17 per cent less than list prices. When favorable inquiries were received from the farmers, they were required to file applications for membership in the company, which were sold for $55, payable over a five year period, according to the information of the indictment. Promissory notes were issued and turned over to the Creditors' Protective Bureau.

The concern also advertised that it could dispose of farm produce at much higher prices than farmers were receiving in the markets.

The indictments were returned following the presentation of evidence by Assistant Attorney General William Borden, who has worked for the last several years at the U. HORSES LEAD DRY AGENTS TO MASTER'S MOONSHINE STILL Minneapolis—Knowledge of horses gained on his father's farm near Fond du Lac, Wis., enabled Michael Johannes, police detective, and members of his "dry" squad to locate to a hazy region of liquor and moonshine near here Wednesday.

When a farmer suspected of peddling intoxicating liquor to sell drinks, driving a pair of horses hitched to a lantern wagon, was stopped, three empty jugs were discovered. The farmer refused to take the officers to his home, so Johannes mounted the seat, took the reins, allowing them to change legs, and started the team. The horses hurried home, eager to reach the feed box. Three stills, liquor and mash were found. Susan Penske, the farmer, will be given a hearing before a United States commissioner on the charge of manufacturing intoxicating liquor.

Evansville.—The Farm Bureau held an interesting and well attended meeting Tuesday evening. The main object of the meeting was the matter of getting a lime-sulfur crusher which is expected will soon be at work on the different farms so the farmers will know just what per cent of time per acre to apply for best results. County Agent R. T. Glasco was present at the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Holmes and Miss Martha Holmes left Thursday by automobile for their summer home near Brill, Wis., where they will spend the summer. They were accompanied by Roy Chase who will return with the car.

A. C. Holmes and family are moving into the Y. C. Holmes home.

HUTTON CHARGED AS LAW VIOLATOR

Warrant Out for Arrest of Superintendent of Anti-Saloon League.

Milwaukee.—R. P. Hutton, state superintendent of the Wisconsin Anti-Saloon League, for whom a warrant was issued Wednesday charging violation of section 1217 of the state corrupt practices act, is out of Milwaukee and will not return for a week or ten days, according to Mrs. Hutton, who communicated with District attorney W. C. Zabel, who served the warrant.

Mrs. Hutton said her husband is in Ashland, Wis., where he is carrying on the work of the league, and that she had notified him that he had been named in a warrant. Conviction carries a maximum fine of $1,000 or three years imprisonment.

The charges were preferred by Judge Levi H. Bancroft of Milwaukee Center as an outgrowth of the recent judicial election by the Milwaukee voters would await the completion of the jury which although it voted $7,000 damages made a mistake in its verdict which wiped out her chances to recover.

The action grew out of the injuries of her husband, who was fatally injured while icing a refrigerator according to the complaint, that

Did you ever go to a well for water with a bucket that had big holes in? Wasn't it exasperating to start off for the house or barn with a full pail and find that half of the water was lost before you got back with it?

Well, that's the way it has been with dollars for the past few years. They've had big holes in them. When you took them to the store to spend them, they lost half of their value. For several years it has seemed as though it took two or three times as many dollars to buy things as it did before the war.

But Old Man Dollar has been undergoing health building treatment for many months. The Dollar is growing solid and strong again. We can't say that it is as good as dollars were before the war; but it is a vastly better dollar than it was a year ago.

And today the dollar is better than it was last month—better in so many ways than it was last week—if you spend it in our store for the remarkable month of May Offerings.

What a grand and glorious feeling it is to really get your money's worth again. And now and here, that is exactly what you do.

"Twin Beds" as a play was funny when produced on the stage a few years back. The production, changed in a few details, is even more of a comedy scream on the film. It is lots of fun for the acting is exceptional.

A packed house had many laughs and snickers out of the film as shown at the Apollo theatre Wednesday night. There is nothing in the screen version to make a person even blush, except possibly one affected with effeminacy.

Carter De Haven as Signor Monti, the troublesome tenor singer, and Helen Raymond as his worldly wife are the best characters in the picture. If there is any possible comedy in a scene they develop it. The film is the best comedy that has been seen in Janesville for some time.

The famous bed-room scene in which Signor Monti gets into the wrong twin bed in a "winotel" manner is the height of "movie mirth." Some one in the audience, however, remarked that it was an "old story" due to a recent amendment and the Matheon bill.

Therefore if you wish a good laugh, or rather a series of laughs, go and see "Twin Beds" Thursday night at the Apollo. It is a gloom chaser. The production shows here for the last time Thursday.

CHANGES NEEDED IN KNOX RESOLUTION

Provisions for Retention of Property of Germans to be Amended.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington President Harding wants the Knox resolution declaring state of peace between the United States and Germany passed by the house, but he has found it necessary to approve certain amendments to the resolution which will be passed by the senate.

The changes are fundamental and will come as a surprise to those Germans residing in America who had believed the Knox resolution would automatically end the powers of the alien property custodian and that the American government hereafter would simply hold the German property without exercising any of the broad powers of sale or supervision which was entrusted to it by the trading with the enemy act.

German Property "Retained" The language of the Knox resolution as passed by the senate simply says that all enemy property now in the possession of the American government "shall be retained." But it is understood that Senator Knox is favorable to the amendments, and probably would have made them when the measure was in the senate except that the legal experts did not get around to it. There is no friction about it—no clash between President Harding and members of congress—but simply a revision of the language of the resolution as so often happens when a bill passes one house and is up for final passage in the other house. Usually important bills are amended in the senate, but the Knox resolution was put through the senate without amendment. It was deemed desirable to rush it through without getting it tangled up in controversies.

Differ on Declaring Peace. Nevertheless there is one point which has occasioned considerable comment and which has produced honest differences of opinion among the republicans themselves. It is the phrase whereby the original declaration that as soon as the Knox resolution is passed the American government would be prohibited from selling any German property or otherwise administering it.

Other Amendments There are other amendments of the Knox resolution which are deemed

Lakota Married Men Victorious in 10-9 Battle

Showing flashes of old time form and with the aid of three crack pitchers, married men of the Lakota club scored a 10 to 9 victory over their single brethren in a sensational game at Spaulding's pond yesterday afternoon. The game was the feature of the first of a series of four club picnics to be held this summer, the initial one being in the nature of a farewell party for William Brockhaus, who is to leave the ranks of the married men next month.

Major T. E. Welsh and Alderman J. J. Dulin were the guests of honor. Members of the Janesville Tractor ball club were also there as honor guests.

Single men claim their defeat the first in six years, and are confident the tables will be turned in the next encounter. They have not had enough practice this year, they say. Richards started pitching, for the married men and lasted six innings, when Art Schwind was sent in the box by Manager Langdon. Schwind failed to have much on the ball, so he was yanked after one inning and Field was sent in to finish the game. The single men collected four hits to the married men three according to the records of Willie MacDonald, who assumed to keep score. His book credits the married men with eight errors, giving only two to the single men.

Vi Hemming pitched the entire game for the single men, and should have won, except for one bad inning, the sixth, when Langdon's crew pushed across eight runs by bunting heavy hits and taking advantage of misplays of Capt. Rube Knell's outfit. Sullivan, Kober, and Brockhaus were stars for the losers, although the whole team played in league style for seven of the eight stanzas.

James Hefferan scored the winning run when he raced in from third on an alleged squeeze play by "Doc" Richards. The married men were reinforced by the presence of Bob Deller, who came all the way from DeWitt to perform in center field. Sennett, Carle and Drummond played their usual consistent and handy games.

Jack Wooten, pitcher for the Janesville Tractors, umpired the battle. George Sherman was errand boy for the umpire. Maurice Weirick was cheer leader for the married men. The score of the game:

Single 9 10 2 1 10—9
Married 0 0 0 1 1 8 0 0—10

RELIEF BUREAU
IS DISCONTINUEDMuch Accomplished in 3 1/2
Months Secretary's Final Report Shows.

Closing of the United Bureau of Relief of the Chamber of Commerce, in accordance with a prearranged plan of the general city committee, took effect Wednesday, in an announcement made Thursday, Julian O. Holman, manager of the Chamber, declared:

"The bureau proved that there is a need for making the several relief agencies of the city in a central organization. It showed that more can be done at a less expense and more efficiently.

"Through a centralized body, if a family is followed up they can be put back upon their feet and will no longer be objects of charity. Most such families do not know how to manage their own finances and would continue to be objects of charity if they had a million dollars.

"Indirectly, the bureau discovered the need of making all health agencies of the city. The several now existing overlap in their work.

"Miss Ketchum has done the work of the bureau extremely well and with the aid of her care and ability, the experiment has been a success."

What was Accomplished.

A final report of the Kathryn Ketchum, secretary, stated that the bureau accomplished five things in its three and a half months existence:

- (1) Cleanliness has been introduced into the homes where order had been unknown;
- (2) A healthful diet was accepted by eight families which previously had lived on starch or meat foods with little or no vegetables;
- (3) Families have changed their types of expenditures so that they can live better on smaller income than four months ago;
- (4) 49 children have been recommended where feasible as possible Sunday school pupils;
- (5) Persons have been given employment for which they were well fitted and in the support of their families.

This was made possible by firms and individuals registering open jobs with the bureau.

The secretary's report states that most of the needy of Jamesville are more anxious for work than for charity.

$1,200 Total Spent.

Cost of operating the bureau for the period of its existence was $1,200.24, while contributions for its maintenance were $1,744.41, leaving a balance on hand of $444.17.

Total spent as follows: February, $415; March $217; April $298; and May $106. The items for which money was spent are:

Groceries $390; meals $60; coal $174; clothing $78; and salaries $350.

The bureau was maintained by the united efforts of churches and fraternal organizations. Under the close supervision of the Chamber of Commerce, where the office was maintained, an executive committee composed of the following directed its activities:

Rev. Dean J. P. Ryan, chairman; Miss Gertrude Cobb, Miss Josephine Carle, Frank Green, Rev. P. F. Lewis, Rev. Henry Willmann, Rev. A. J. Melrose.

No longer in the amateur but in the professional class is the claim made by the members of the Men's Brotherhood of the Methodist church, in the cooking and serving of a meal. They served the "Ladies Night" banquet Wednesday evening.

About 200 attended. The meal was served by a corps of waiters headed by E. P. Hooking. They were Charles Beck, Frank Doughty, Arthur Wiggins, Rev. St. Clair, O. A. Karpberg, Fred Reymore, J. R. Nichols, Charles Collett, John Lewis, John Conway, S. J. Zeeva, David Keenan, W. E. Getz, Roy P. Miller, Arthur Ward, J. J. Robt. J. M. Beck, Lyle Red and E. Venable.

Dr. P. T. Richards, Nelson Hinde, Thomas Scott, R. E. Gotschell, Elmer Townsend, Jas. Seebie, Alonzo Hubert and Marcus Kellogg worked in the kitchen. The decorating committee consisted of Dr. P. T. Richards, E. G. Owen and Mary Austin.

It was voted to hold a picnic meeting sometime in June, when election of officers will be held. A challenge from the Congregational Men's society to a game of baseball was also accepted and Frank Doughty made captain of the team. A debate on the topic "Should the Women Preach?" was put on by Cora Wilhelm, Helen Atkinson, Mrs. Lyle Red and Lois Atkinson. Betsy Sorenson also gave a humorous skit, and the Chamber of Commerce quartet sang. The Y. M. C. A. orchestra played. It consisted of Harry Shurtliff, Walter Will and Mrs. Howard Green. The program was in charge of J. C. Koller.

CHIEF JUSTICE WHITE IS DEAD AT CAPITAL

the south on the supreme bench for a number of years.

Coming from a family of judges, his father and his grandfather before him having been on the bench, Chief Justice White had had a judicial inheritance as well as legal education. His knowledge of the civil law was generally regarded as the most profound of any man that ever sat on the bench of the supreme court of the United States.

He was born in the parish of Lafourche, La., November 3, 1845. His parents were Catholics. His education was in Catholic institutions.

Chief Justice White served in the Confederate army during the Civil war; practiced law among the people of Louisiana; and became a law planter on his lowlands. His ability and high character were recognized by the people in repeated commissions as a public official. In 1874, he was elected senator in the Louisiana legislature. Four years later, he was appointed associate justice of the supreme court of the state.

In 1891 Mr. White became a national figure. A senatorial contest was waged in Louisiana, and he entered the race. The legislature finally chose him to succeed Senator Eustis.

Elevated to Bench.

Chief Justice White was in the senate three years before he was elevated to the bench of the supreme court of the United States by President Cleveland, in 1894. During that period, he distinguished himself on two occasions. Once was in the debate on the anti-optic bill, when Senator White made a profound legal argument against the constitutionality of the measure. The other occasion was during the struggle over the repeal of the Sherman act when he delivered the views of President Cleveland. His nomination to the bench ended a memorable contest in the senate.

New Yorkers had been nominated by President Cleveland, but both failed of confirmation. "Throwing to the winds the custom which for 80 years had kept a New York man on the bench," Mr. Cleveland named Senator White. He was confirmed within an hour.

Promoted by Taft.

Almost as unusual as his appointment as associate justice was his elevation to the chief justiceship. In 1910, when President Taft was besought by various factions of the publican party to appoint first this man and then that to succeed Chief Justice Fuller, the president boldly disregarded the custom regarding the selection of justices from the party and sent to the senate the nomination of Justice White. His nomination was confirmed immediately.

HOT WEATHER GRIPS

CITY; MERCURY AT 83

Jamesville's hopes for warmer weather disappointed for more than two weeks were gladdened Thursday with the coming of the warmest day of May. Merchants were predicting that if the summer weather continued there would soon be a rush for straw hats and lighter clothing.

Gardeners and farmers rejoiced over the warm weather. The thermometer showed a rise Thursday from 75 at 10 o'clock to 83 at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. Probably the hottest day of the year.

CORN EXCHANGE OPEN

The Corn Exchange, freshly paved with brick, was thrown open to traffic Thursday after being blocked for more than a month. South Franklin street will be opened within a few days. Contractor George Welch is replacing two sections of brick on West Milwaukee street left in bad condition when the Franklin street rails were torn out.

FOUNTAIN RESIGNS
AS CITY SEALERGives Up Office So Firm Can Carry Out City Cement
Contract.

John B. Fountain, city sealer of weights and measures for the past four months, has handed in his resignation to City Clerk E. J. Sartell to be presented to the council at its adjourned regular meeting Monday night. The action follows a difficulty which arose when the firm of Hayes-Fountain-Hayes, of which he is a member, accepted the city's contract for 1921.

The council decided that no city official shall be interested, directly or indirectly, in any city contract.

Attention of the council was called to the unusual situation Monday night by W. J. Hill, former alderman from the Fourth, who lost out by two votes in getting the city's 1921 cement contract. He declared in his letter to the council that by virtue of the situation, the office of city sealer should be declared vacant and that new bids for cement work should be sought by the city.

GALBRAITH WANTS
SLACKER LISTS
MADE PUBLIC

Indianapolis.—A vigorous defense of the war departments action in giving widest publicity to the slackers lists is contained in a letter from R. W. Galbraith Jr., national commander of the American Legion, forwarded to commanders of the Legion's 48 departments.

"Publication of the lists in newspapers will give the United States the only satisfactory means of protecting the innocent and punishing the guilty," Mr. Galbraith declared. He added he hoped the newspapers would take the view that they will, in publishing the names, aid in clearing veterans erroneously branded slackers as well as assuring punishment of the guilty.

That the slacker lists contain names of men who honorably served their country in the time of its greatest peril, only strengthens the conviction that the list should be given the widest publicity.

TO TAKE PLEDGE

John Keating promised Judge Maxine Wednesday that he will take the pledge. The case was continued with no date set. Keating and Hugh Stockman were arrested a week ago Sunday for intoxication, both entering pleas of not guilty. Keating later paid a fine of $15 and costs.

Thanks Committed.

Mr. Fountain, in his letter of resignation, thanks the city officials for their help. He says: "My own business will take up so much of my time that I do not feel I can do justice to anything else. I wish to thank you for the courteous treatment and the cooperation extended to me by your city clerk. You may feel free to call upon me should it be necessary to give any assistance to my successor."

Markham Elected to Church Post

L. A. Markham, Janesville, was elected moderator of the Beloit district of the Congregational church, comprising 20 churches in Southern Wisconsin, at the district conference at Stoughton, Wednesday. This is the highest office of the district. He succeeds Charles W. Boardman, Delavan. Rev. Wilson Denney, Lake Geneva, was chosen its registrar and Mr. Markham and Rev. Denney as delegates from the Janesville party.

Sessions were held Tuesday and Wednesday in the Stoughton church, with a large majority of the churches of the district represented.

The meeting was the occasion also of the installation ceremonies of Rev. W. W. Shively as pastor of the Stoughton church. Addresses were made by L. C. Thimadage, Madison, superintendent of Wisconsin diocese; Paul Rye, Elgin, Chicago, of the Congregational Publication society; and Miss Frances Patterson, of the Women's Board of Foreign Missions.

VIEW COUNTY FARM FOR SANITARIUM

Supervisors' Committee Spends Day in Investigation—Promise Definite Report.

Investigation for a site for a county tuberculosis sanitarium was made by members of the Rock county board of supervisors on Thursday. The committee to consider the site question is composed of W. W. Dalton, Clinton; Simon Smith, Beloit; M. L. Paulson, Evansville; W. S. Perrigo, Janesville; John A. Paul, Allenton; George Woodruff, Janesville, and others who joined in the committee investigation during the afternoon.

The committee looked over the county property on the west side of the concrete road, which can be improved enough for erection of sanitarium buildings, they said.

During the last meeting of the county board there were resolutions passed for a special committee to act in cooperation with the county building committee to make definite recommendations to the board at the August meeting. The county supervisors by a decided vote demanded some action on the sanitarium matter.

TWO DISTINGUISHED DEAD.
Two great men have died in the last two days. Franklin K. Lane served well, faithfully, and honestly in many capacities and the highest esteem perhaps is that he died poor. He had neither the time nor the inclination to make a fortune. He was a newspaper man, then a lawyer, then an employee of the government as a member of the Interstate Commerce commission. He was always "on the square." As Secretary of the Interior he did many things to improve the service and eliminate the red tape and quack methods that in this department had reached the height of the "Circumlocution Office" of Dickens' time. This country needs more men like Mr. Lane in its high places, clean personally and clean officially.

When the laws of France were codified by Napoleon in the early part of the 19th century the greater part of the United States west of the Mississippi was a colony of France. That was Louisiana territory, purchased later by the United States. When Louisiana became a state the basic law was the Code Napoleon. It was the only state in the union that did not have the common law of England as the foundation for its legal principles and its statutes. In later years when litigation came up under that code the greatest interpreter of those laws was Edward Douglass White, a native of Louisiana. He came from a long line of distinguished ancestry. His father had been a governor. The son was a senator of his state and distinguished himself by his learning. Later when named an associate justice of the Supreme court of the United States he was recognized as eminently fitted for the place. When there was a vacancy, President Taft broke precedent and appointed him to the chief justice's position although Mr. White was a democrat. There was little protest for it was conceded that he was most eminently fitted for the place. His death will be a distinct loss to the bench. His career has been honorable and his integrity has been unquestioned. It is not often the same high praise can be honestly given to two so distinguished dead in the same paragraph.

Naturally the death of Chief Justice White brings forward the question of his successor. Justices may die but the court must continue. The same moving reason for the appointment of Justice White would be well to apply to the naming of a successor. Politics and political service ought not to play a part. Merit, integrity, capability—these are the three things that should be the guide. It is to be regretted that Charles Evans Hughes is so valuable just now in his place as secretary of state that it would be a calamity to take him from the cabinet and elevate him to the bench again, but it would seem the logical thing to do.

Make bullets while the moon shines seems to be the slogan of West Virginia.

CUTTING DOWN THE PROHIBITION AGENTS.

There seems to be a large amount of exaggerated feeling over the reduction of the force of the prohibition commissioner and the charge is made that bootlegging, large and small, will go on merrily without these officials on the job. We hardly think so. They have been on the pay roll a long time and the bootlegging has not been stayed. They have been drawing the salaries and bonded whiskey and moonshine has been obtainable in a thousand devious ways almost universally. It may be a little wetter openly when they are gone but as far as the federal prohibition agents have been concerned, it will hardly be more moist in the United States than with them drawing $250,000 a year. Also there will be less scandal and fewer of them boarding in jail. For double-barreled inefficiency commend us to the prohibition enforcement of the national government. Losing 700 of them is not a calamity; it is a positive benefit.

In the first place the federal government has from the start made it hard for the prohibition law to be enforced. With trumpet blare it has announced the arrest of some poor devil in the woods who has made a pint of moonshine, and at the same time allowed millions of gallons of whiskey to be released from the bonded warehouses of the big distillers and all of that whiskey, either through the connivance of the agents or the blindness of the enforcers, has reached the consumer, to the great benefit and profit of the distiller and the criminal distributor.

State after state has adopted rigid measures for the enforcement of the law. The state must enforce it. The federal government has done more to make it possible to violate the law than efforts of the state have been able to counteract. There will be little sorrow about the discharge of the national agents except when pay day comes around for them.

No more popular appointment could have been made for the army than that of Gen. Pershing as Chief of Staff. He had enough trouble with the Chief of Staff during the war when there seemed to be some question as to whether Pershing or March was the commander of operations, to be able to avoid these dangers in operation.

The Hon. Georges Carpentier having arrived early in New York, Mr. May said that the first

IS MONEY DANGEROUS?

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN.
Washington, D. C.—Is it a help or a handicap in the pursuit of success and happiness to have wealth which you have inherited or otherwise obtained without any effort of your own? Most of us would be glad to hazard the handicaps and take the money, if any should come our way. And yet the precise effect which unearned money has on a man is a subject much discussed and much differed about. And there is certainly a widespread belief that much money is dangerous to a young man, that his success and happiness are most probable if he has to make his own way. A surprisingly large number of people act upon this belief. For instance, within the last few weeks two such instances have come to the attention of the public. In one of these a young man, Charles Garland, refused to accept a bequest of a quarter of a million dollars. He gave no reason for his refusal, but simply informed the trustees of the estate that he was not interested in the money and would not take it. In the other case, the will of a multi-millionaire, Marshall Field, was found to provide that his grandsons should not have the full use of his estate until each had reached the age of 50 years. The Field will specifically states that this action is taken to prevent the heirs from "leading useless lives of luxury and idleness."

Whatever Garland's motive may have been in refusing a fortune, Field's motive in tying his up is thus plainly announced. He believed that inherited wealth will make a man useless. And the diligent newspaper reader might collect many other instances of well men who have sought to protect their heirs from the dangers of wealth, and a few others of men and women who have themselves run away from wealth. Of course, the general statement is in the opposite direction, but these instances are significant.

The whole question is significant because it brings up that ancient problem as to whether environment or heredity is the determining factor in a man's destiny. In other words, is it true, as we have generally been taught in this country, that if you just get a good education and work hard and mind your P's and Q's you can do almost anything? Or, on the contrary, is it true that your destiny depends largely on the kind of brain you were born with, and that you will get the education and all the rest of the things you need in spite of almost any handicap of mere circumstances.

This question has been debated by the millions of words, and yet it has never been anywhere near settled. The reason seems to be that, while there has been much talk, there has been little investigation. Our psychologists are just beginning to investigate such practical and vital questions as this. We may expect some real light on the question in the next few years.

Alfred Russell Wallace, the friend and follower of Darwin, was one who firmly believed that wealth was a curse to a young man, and that inheritance of wealth should be done away with. Frank Harris is another man of undoubted intelligence who is fond of making the same assertion. But in both cases, it is merely assertion backed up by a little theorizing. Let some investigator gather all possible instances of young men who have inherited money, let him find out just what each one accomplished, and trace as far as possible, what effect the money had on their careers. Such a man would be worth listening to, because he would have some evidence as well as argument to offer.

Meantime, it is pretty clear that we believe what we want to believe. It is comforting to think that we may achieve much if we only get a good education and work hard—that these factors are more important than heredity. It is also comforting for those of us who have no money to believe that we have thereby escaped a curse, and are happier and more successful than we would have been if we had inherited millions.

The nearest thing to a scientific study of the question which we can find is a book by Frederick Adams Woods, on "Hereditary and Raciality." Mr. Woods studied the histories of all the royal families in Europe with a view to discovering whether in these families—chosen because so much information about them can be ascertained—there have been hereditary or racial defects. He also sets out to discover whether these families have tended to degenerate by reason of their luxurious lives, as they are popularly believed to do. Here then, is a real statistical study of the effect of inherited wealth on a great number of men and women—over 5,000 are studied individually.

Woods, who is a biologist first and historian only second, reaches the emphatic conclusion that in royal families, wealth and luxury have not tended to produce degeneration. He proves, to his own satisfaction, that when such families have become degenerate in ability or power, it has always been due to hereditary influences. Usually inbreeding is not the cause, either. The cause usually is an unwise marriage. Some prince marries an obscure woman who is stupid, commonplace, or unhealthy. The next generation shows the effect of the bad cross. Two or three such marriages, and the blood of the royal family, nearly always of excellent quality to start with, is diluted with weakness which ultimately leads to its downfall.

Woods shows that some royal families, like that of Portugal, for example, have produced men of high capacity for as much as 12 generations without a break. Then, due to the introduction of inferior blood, this same line in a few generations has literally gone to pieces.

These conclusions of Woods seem to agree with those of the modern scientists in general. Modern science believes that a man's destiny is largely determined by his natural endowment. This endowment is largely inherited from his immediate forebears. That is the canon that there will be of about the same capacity as your mother and father. More rarely, you may resemble a grandparent. Still more rarely, you may throw back to some ancient forbear, long forgotten. Most rarely of all, you may be that freak of nature, a genius. A man of remarkable ability is occasionally born of commonplace parents. But such instances are much more rare than is generally believed.

Whether you have money or not, is really of little importance, according to the scientific point of view. If you have ability and strength, you will get the education you need without money and very likely without schools. Furthermore, the strong man is seldom ruined by money. It does not lead him into idleness because he is possessed of energies and curiosities which make idleness unendurable to him. On the other hand, the strong character cares little for luxury and is more damaged by the lack of wealth than he is defeated by the possession of it. It is the weakling who lets his money run away with him if he has any, and it is the weakling who is eaten up with envy of the rich if he lacks it, and spends his life sighing for a million dollars and dreaming of get-rich-quick schemes.

It's the man, not the money, that counts.

PLAYING FOR KEEPS.
I've watched him change from his liss and things, from bonnets known as "cute," to little frocks, and later on I saw him don a suit.
And though it was of calico, those knickers gave him for a boy.
Until the day we all agreed 'twas time for a change.
I saw I've seen the changes come, it seems with bounds and leaps.
But here's another just arrived—he's playing mits for keeps.

The guide posts of his life by by. The boy that is today.
Tomorrow morning we may wake to find he has gone away.
And in his place will be a lad we've never known before.
Order and order in his ways and filled with new-found lore.
The way he looks another boy today, counting his mits for keeps.
And proudly boasting to his dad he's playing mits for keeps!
His mother doesn't like this change. She says "It's a shame."
That since he plays with larger boys, he's bound, to lose the game.
But little do I mind his loss; I'm more concerned to know
When he comes back the times when he must see his mits for keeps.
And oh, I hope he will not be the little boy who weeps
Too much when he has failed to win while playing mits for keeps.

Playing for keeps! Another step towards manhood's broad estate!
This is what some term growing up, or destiny, or fate.
Yet from this game with mits, played with youngsters on the street,
I hope will come a larger boy, too big to lie or cheat.
And these mits which from his clutch are other mits, sweeps,
I hope he'll learn the game of life which must be played for keeps.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT
By ROY K. MOULTON.

A RECOLLECTION.
Once upon a time
A young man went to call upon a girl.
And he carried in one hand a bouquet—
A beautiful bouquet of American Beauties—
That had cost him back one old iron plank.
In the other hand he carried bonbons—
Whole boxes of bonbons and chocolate.
Two pounds, to be exact, and they had
Reduced his bank account just 80 cents.
In his upper left-hand vest pocket
He carried two seats for a good show—
And they were right down in front.
Where everybody could see the girl—
And the seats had cost him two dollars.
After the show they had a little supper
That cost him the amount of $1.65,
And they both figured that they had
Enjoyed quite a large and expensive evening.
When the young lady didn't want
To go to the theater he would drive
Around with a livery rig—two trained nags,
That would drive themselves with him.
Had other use for both of his arms.
And the use of the team for the evening
Usually made him poorer by $2.
And if he came often enough
The livery man would reduce the charge
To $1.50 and occasionally would allow
Him to have the rig of an evening for nothing.
If the young man wanted to get married
He would rent a house for $10 a month
And fill it with furniture for $150.
He would make $25 a week and save money.
What has become of this young man?
Has anybody seen anything of him lately?

Who's Who Today

DR. JOSEPH WIRTH.
Dr. Joseph Wirth, the new German chancellor, who succeeded Konstantin Fehrenbach, is the leader of the Center-Christ party and with that of his party, and the other main parties of the coalition has succeeded in forming his cabinet to accept the allied reparational ultimatum.
Dr. Wirth has for some time been the principal leader of a new German party, which he served since March, 1920, as minister of finance. He was then appointed to this post by the then chancellor, Herman Muller, and in the following June when the Muller government fell, Dr. Wirth was held over by the Fehrenbach government.
Wirth is a man who has exposed some of the greatest evils in the German financial system and the fact that members of the Hohenzollern family were smuggling gold out of the country. He was one of the German delegates at the Spa conference last July.

LOOKING BACKWARD

THIRTY YEARS AGO
May 19, 1891.—Nathaniel W. Proper, one of Janesville's early settlers, who came here forty years ago and has been a woodworker for Janesville Turnpike company for many years, died last night. A burglar or some burglars broke into Oscar Brook's gun shop on River street and got away with eight revolvers.—Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Hall left for an eastern trip today.

THIRTY-ONE YEARS AGO
May 19, 1890.—The members of the G. A. R. of this city and also the members of the woman relief corps attended the services at the Baptist church in a body yesterday. Rev. Hodge preached a fine sermon.—W. T. Van Kirk is chairman of the general committee for Memorial Day. The others interested met last night and some more committees were named and given work to do.

TWENTY YEARS AGO
May 19, 1891.—Sunday.

TEN YEARS AGO
May 19, 1911.—Mayor John C. Nichols has issued a proclamation that because of the intensely hot weather now being experienced, men may wear their straw hats now and no questions will be asked as to the propriety of it. The city custom not to wear them until the first of June.—Field Day for the boys of the Blind School will be held at the school Saturday morning. There are to be many different events.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

A FILLING IN TIME
The baby's teeth must be kept sound if good, regular, sound, permanent teeth are desired. It is crucially to permit a young child's teeth to decay or to neglect baby teeth that show cavities, merely because the teeth are only temporary.

The first molar tooth of the permanent set appears at about the age of seven years. If there are already neglected decayed teeth in the child's mouth, this first permanent tooth is very likely to become decayed. In fact it is frequently found with a cavity at the very first examination after it is erupted. Parents generally fail to understand that this molar or seven-year-molar is a permanent tooth and therefore they fail to take the child to the dentist to have the cavity properly treated. The earliest progresses until the tooth is damaged beyond redemption. Then arises a serious problem: Hobson's choice of allowing the decayed tooth to remain, with its menace to the integrity of the other teeth and of the tonsils and adenoids, or to the child's general health, or extraction with its menace to the regularity of the future permanent set and the development of the jaw. My own preference would be for extraction in such a case, though I should certainly defer to the judgment of the dentist in such a matter.

It is no idle speculation that a decayed molar tooth favors decay of the tonsils and adenoid body. The last molar tooth in a child's or adult's mouth is practically in contact with the tonsils when the mouth is closed. It is therefore conceivable that bacteria may be directly implanted upon the surface of the tonsil from a cavity in the back molar tooth. Some throat specialists view this relation in the other side, they think that infection travels rather from the tonsils to the back molar tooth. I am not a throat specialist and do not see it that way. It is a familiar observation that children whose teeth are kept sound rarely if ever have diseased tonsils and adenoids. Aside from the feeding of children with wholesome, plain, unadorned food, one of the most important things that parents may do to protect their children from so many youngsters, there is probably no other one precaution fraught with such far-reaching benefit to the child's health as the careful preservation of the baby teeth.

I am making no appeal for toothbrushes nor urging dentists. If we gave children unadorned food they would have little need for toothbrushes and other impediments of the oral toilet. A brushing occasionally may be all right. No harm, provided the brush is clean. What I am pleading for is early, regular, frequent visits to a competent dentist.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Water With Meals.
I am a boy thirteen years and drink about four glasses of water with each meal. My aunt thinks it floods my stomach. Does drinking that much do me any harm? (H. S.)
ANSWER.—It may do harm. However, a glass or two of cold water with meals may be all right. When the sudden thirst at meal time, it certainly does harm if you use the water to wash down food.

Blue Eyes Change to Brown.
If a child is born with blue eyes is it possible for the eyes ever to turn brown or vice versa? (A.)
ANSWER.—All eyes are brown. Brown is the color of the pigment of the iris. If there is no pigment, the eyes are dark brown ("black"). If none, albino. If very little, "blue." If more, gray. If still more, brown. The eyes often grow darker than they were in infancy. They never grow lighter.

Cataract Need Not Blind.
How long does it take for what is called an "inside" cataract to ripen? Have you known in your extensive experience of any instance of a cataract passing off the eye of its own accord, or rather drying up? (C. R. W.)
ANSWER.—Cataracts take months or years to ripen, but it is no longer necessary to wait for ripening. However, any particular experience with cataract, other than the casual experience of any doctor, and I have never known of an instance of a cataract clearing up spontaneously.

Q. Does congress have to approve the appointment of ambassadors?
A. Yes.

Q. The president has the power to select ambassadors to foreign countries, but the appointments have to be ratified by the United States senate.
A. Yes.

Q. Please give me some information about the damaging winds that blow over Texas every spring.
A. H. F.

Q. The winds to which you undoubtedly refer are the strong cold winds which occasionally blow southward along the eastern slopes of the Rocky mountains. They are called "northerners" and are frequently preceded by southerly winds, moderate in temperature or even uncomfortably warm, and the change to the cold northerly current may sometimes be so abrupt as to give the sensation of passing from summer into winter weather. These winds are not confined to the spring season, nor to western Texas, though they are most frequent during the spring and summer months. They are accompanied by rain, sleet, or snow or by dust.

Q. Which was the first country that was a republic? D. U. N.
A. Many of the ancient towns had a republican form of government, notably Tyre and Sidon, Carthage, Athens, and Rome. Most authorities seem to agree, however, that the earliest republic in the accepted sense of the term was that of Athens.

Q. When was starch first made?
H. E. M.

Q. The first making of starch is not of record, but it is spoken of by Pliny in the first century A. D. as being made from wheat or the island of Chios. It is seldom mentioned by later writers until the time of Queen Elizabeth, 16th century, when its use became a necessity for stiffening the enormous ruffs worn by the queen and her court.

Q. How did "snake" happen to be called that? A. H. C.
A. Tanks got their name from the fact that when they were first being constructed front secrecy was desired, the parts were made in different places, and they were always referred to officially as "water containers for Mesopotamia."

Q. What is meant by Gothic architecture? S. K.
A. The name is applied to the style that was developed by the ecclesiastical builders of the Middle Ages between 1250 and 1500 A. D. The name is a misnomer, for the Goths as a nation had disappeared long before the beginnings of this architecture. The style has common characteristics of this style are the pointed arch, the tracery window, the flying buttress, spires and pinnacles and internally the ribbed groin vault.

Q. I am often puzzled as to which word to use—father or further. Will you please illustrate? W. A. D.
A. Further implies distance and further implies addition. For illustration I cannot go further, with you. "He wishes to further his own interests."

Q. Do male parrots learn more readily than females? L. M. C.
A. The Bureau of Ornithological Survey says that male parrots as a rule respond better to teaching than females.

She began to read again. Presently the clock in the hall struck 11. Still and worried, she rose.

As she approached Caroline's apartment, she was surprised to find the door of the latter's bedroom slightly ajar and her lights still burning. Evelyn moved softly past.

But Caroline's ears were keen. The slightly open door was flung wide, and Caroline stood on the threshold. "Won't you come in, please?" I have something to tell you.

Evelyn paused. "Won't it keep until tomorrow?"

"Not at all, please. I shall keep you," Caroline pointed to the rocking-chair.

Evelyn reluctantly accepted it. "Do pardon me," said Evelyn, "but I simply can't wait very long. You know how it usually is when two women begin to talk at this hour of the night. But it is something about the housekeeping, don't feel you need to speak of it."

"It is not about the housekeeping," Caroline responded. "I have something to tell you."

"Then, surely it will keep until tomorrow?"

"There is really no reason why it should not keep indefinitely. I had only to say that I am going to be married—to Mr. Bayler. I thought the announcement might interest you."

CHAP. VIII.—Christmas Eve.

Snow had fallen steadily for hours. Mrs. Madison had begun to despair of receiving more callers. Since 11 in the morning her home, one of the most picturesque and interesting of Lexington's ancient landmarks, had been fairly decked with Christmas greens, and through the greater part of the day the large front rooms had resounded with the pleasant greetings of friends.

On this particular day Caroline Delaford, too, had seen fit during the early morning hours to make a short call. She had come in with such a look of triumphant satisfaction that old Mrs. Madison, recalling a recent rumor in relation to the attentions of Geoffrey Bayler, had immediately begun to suspect matrimonial prospects.

Immediately after her departure Evelyn was ushered in by the butler. Mrs. Madison came forward with her most gracious and welcoming smile, and midway across the room she paused.

"My dear, you are looking down-right ill," she said worriedly. "Don't let me frighten you, dear Mrs. Madison," Evelyn replied. "I am not, at all. I am just a little tired, and with everything pretty well settled, I could stand to put up with a few more hours of the holiday."

"You are looking down-right ill," she said worriedly. "Don't let me frighten you, dear Mrs. Madison," Evelyn replied. "I am not, at all. I am just a little tired, and with everything pretty well settled, I could stand to put up with a few more hours of the holiday."

"Please—dear Mrs. Madison—Evelyn—beginning, but the old lady completely ignored the interruption. "By the way," she continued, "I can't help thinking that if you had been Geoffrey's wife, the old lady would have offered no opposition. You are the one woman, Mrs. Douglas, tells me, of whom he has ever been anxious to speak kindly."

"You are the one woman, Mrs. Douglas, tells me, of whom he has ever been anxious to speak kindly."

"You are the one woman, Mrs. Douglas, tells me, of whom he has ever been anxious to speak kindly."

"You are the one woman, Mrs. Douglas, tells me, of whom he has ever been anxious to speak kindly."

"Will you give me this magazine?" Evelyn asked abruptly.

Mrs. Madison paused and stared, struck by the white, strange look of her guest.

"Oh, dear!" she replied, eagerly and slightly reassured. "Of course you may have it, my dear."

"And now I must say goodbye."

"My dear," the old lady said in parting, "I am a very old woman and I should like to give you a parting word. It is to keep a very merry heart, live without fear, make the most of pleasant things of this world, and never forget that whatever fault may have to find with it, it is after all the only world we happen to know anything about."

On the same afternoon Maria Douglas, having consented to take upon herself a general responsibility in relation to a dinner time, had arranged for that evening found herself decidedly in a dilemma. Considerably to her surprise when she returned shortly after midnight the discovery had been made that Colonel Douglas was still unaware of the fact that Mrs. Delaford was to be among the guests he was expected to receive.

It had been obviously impossible to discuss the subject freely with Geoffrey, and she was to a large extent ignorant of his uncle's den and implacable dislike of Mrs. Delaford she well knew.

But when Colonel Douglas unexpectedly came into the room the girl had reached her decision.

"By the way, won't you take a look at these place cards? I pointed them myself," Maria all at once began to speak quickly and breathlessly. "This is your Mrs. Delaford is on your right—you see you are to take her in, of course."

"Take her in? How dare you? Do you expect me to make a fool of myself and let the boy put his head in the lion's mouth? Do you think?"

"She faced the irate colonel squarely. "Do you care to know what I think?" said Maria Douglas. "Then for me tell you I think there is no absolutely no help for it. Cousin Marshall, you can do nothing to prevent him marrying Mrs. Delaford."

By Maria's will, the girl burst forth at last. "Order my carriage!" he commanded to the servant who had just entered the room. Once more he fixed his gaze upon Maria. "Where are you going?" he asked slowly and sententiously. "Where there is a will, there is usually a way. In this case there is both a will—and a way."

With that he turned and marched majestically from the room.

"Oh, you are still going out!" Evelyn was just passing the door of the little upstairs library, and she paused at the sound of the indignant, half-jesting surprise in Caroline's cool, clear voice.

"You are not actually going out?" Caroline repeated, bestowing a suave but keenly questioning look upon the girl, the figure in the doorway.

"I have just been told that the heavy snow is fast melting. Only for a little run down the road," she replied, briefly. "Alfred is taking his afternoon nap."

She was in short skirt and raincoat, and she was about to close the door when she pressed down upon her bronze head as in defiance of the storm, her costume being a sort of cheerful challenge that was reflected in her eyes.

"By the way," she said, with a glance out of the window, "did you say down the road, or are you going toward the lawn?"

"Down," responded Evelyn, turning. "I seldom walk toward the lawn."

Caroline reflected, and into the still features there came a look of sinister cold-blooded purpose.

"It was thinking that was just thinking," she suggested, with her eyes fixed on the opposite wall, "that if you had a mind to go in another direction—to take the orchard path, in fact, I might offer you protection."

Mr. Bayler is lunching with some one over across the way, and he will take the orchard path back. I am sure, as I am expecting him here at about five."

FROM BIG LEAGUE BALL PLAYERS

Running the Buses

Written especially for the Boys and Girls Newspaper by

Joe King

While I'm sitting on the bench I closely watch the opposing pitcher. You frequently can make a good many useful observations in this way. And one of these is especially valuable in running the bases.

Nearly every pitcher has some unconscious twist he gives to his arm, or his leg, or his head, or some other part of his body, just before he throws to the catcher. If the base runner knows what this is, and watches for it, he can tell just a half second or so before the pitcher throws that he is going to throw the ball to the catcher, and thus the runner can safely take his lead off the base.

The pitcher generally makes some sort of a move different from that which he makes when he is about to throw home, just before he swings around to toss the ball to first. The base runner should know what this move is, too, and watch for it when he's trying to steal second.

When stealing second it's a good idea to slide into the base.

George Burns, who is considered one of the best base-runners in the National League, attributes part of his success in that line to these two little "tricks."

Always keep your eye on the ball when running bases; if you possibly can. It's hard, but worth while.

Eczema Caused Years of Intense Agony

"I have suffered intense agony from eczema on my leg and other parts of my body for years, and received only temporary relief from other preparations. It is only a month since I started to use PETERSON'S OINTMENT, and there is no sign of eczema or itching. You can refer to me."—Jen. C. Taylor, 27 Parkfield Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I've got a hundred testimonials," say Peterson of Buffalo. "Just as sincere and honest as this one. Years ago, when I first started to put out PETERSON'S OINTMENT, I made up my mind to give a big box for 35 cents, and I am still doing it, as every druggist in the country knows."

"I guarantee PETERSON'S OINTMENT because I know that its mighty healing power is marvelous. I say to every one who buys a box that it is rigidly guaranteed for eczema, salt rheum, old sores, blind, bleeding, itching piles, hemorrhoids, sunburns, chafing, burns, scalds and sunburns, and if not satisfactory, any druggist will return your money." City League Opens Successfully--Tractors Play Today

EAGLES FORFEIT OPENER, BUT WIN PRACTICE GAME

If Wednesday night's opening in the city baseball league, won by the Eagles, is any kind of a criterion, the season is going to be a big success. The forecast is told in the story that although the Eagles appeared on the field grounds without all their men, they picked up seven innings of an exciting practice game to an unofficial victory over the Packers, 4 to 3.

The understanding before the game was that the Eagles would forfeit to the Packers, even if they won. This was done to live up to the rule of the league that a team must have all its players on deck ready to start at 7:30.

Temporary Field
Because the diamond was muddy and too heavy to work on, a temporary playing field was located in the outer section of the regular field. The keenest of rivalry was developed with the players of each side working with frenzy to break a 3-3 tie entered in the second inning.

Although Charlie Bick, gave the Eagles only one hit, three errors behind him handed the triple set of counters to the lodge men on a gold-on-platter. While the Packers came back with four hits, they were aided in garnering their three runs with three errors on the part of the "Scramblers."

Plethora of Errors
Pete Fleming, who appeared in some of his old style twirling stunts with a snappy curve and plenty of speed, worked the winning run of the practice game by starting with a terrific curve to right for a single.

He stole second and third and came in on the play that rubbed his brother Jack at first.

The array of players that were out brought back many of the boys who used to figure in the industrial league several years ago. The same will be true of the other outfits. A high spirit of sportsmanship has been shown already which predicts a big season.

Friday night the Bulls and the Club Hilliards battle at the fair grounds. The outlook is for another close game.

The boxscore of the practice game shows the happenings:

QUAKERS WAGERING ON BIG COMEBACK AFTER 6-4 DEFEAT

Last summer, Whitewater, leading the Central State baseball league, was willing to wager everything it had that the Quakers were a better team than the Samson Tractors. They put their bets on the sensational record of pitcher Jimmy Dodge, but lost to Janesville 5 to 1.

Once again, Whitewater is willing to yell that its team can trim the Tractors, despite a 6 to 4 defeat here last Saturday. The two clubs clash at Whitewater Thursday afternoon.

Quakers' Past.
Whitewater's team is composed of faster players than last year, giving its backers stronger hopes of putting it in the records of the tractor city outfit. They almost pulled the trick last week-end until the Tractors got down to real work and shut over five runs in the seventh.

A large number of local fans will motor up to the game. A special bus is being arranged for others.

At the same time interest is growing in the prospects of the coming Saturday and Sunday games with the All American colored giants of Chicago. This club has been making a clever showing so far this season and according to Manager Frazier is perhaps the strongest contender to have appeared here so far this season.

Triple Marks Day of Homers; Babe Hitless

American League.
B. Ruth appeared in Chicago Wednesday, in five times at bat. Red Faber did not even give him a place of the ball. Meanwhile the White Sox routed the Yankees, 12 to 2.

Everett Scott, Boston shortstop, hit a triple play, the first of the season in the fourth frame of the game between the Tigers and Boston in which the Tycoons experienced a 2 to 0 shutout. Young caught Scott's short fly, tagged out Melvin on the line and tossed to Bush who caught Hendrick off second.

Cleveland won from the Athletics, 4 to 2, on a homer by Smith with Speaker on. Incidentally the Indians regained first position.

Shanks got two home runs for two of Washington's three runs. St. Louis defeated the Senators, 8 to 2. The Browns piled up seven runs in the first.

National League.
Smith's homer in the ninth broke a 2-2 tie, the Giants winning from the Cubs, 3 to 2. In the eighth, a hit batter and four passes scored two runs for the New Yorkers.

The Pirates hammered three Dodgers twirlers for an 11-3 slugging win.

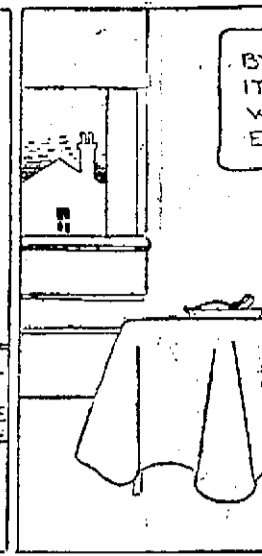

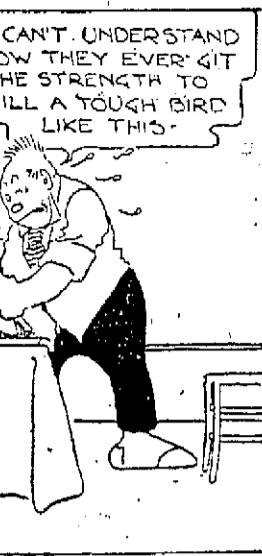

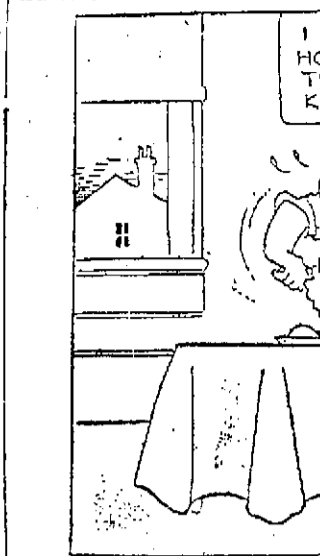

With two on in the ninth, Muesel completed a five-run rally with a homer, Philadelphia coping with St. Louis, 7 to 6. Four batters by Shotton, Pomeroy and Hornsby featured for St. Louis.

Making four runs in the fourth off Luque's offerings, Boston put one over on Cincinnati, 6 to 1. Southward made a homer, Pittsburgh gave the Reds only three hits.

American Association.
Whopps! the Brewers won a game, this time they took Columbus into camp, 3 to 1.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Cong Spring Surprise; Win Basket Playoff

Fighting as if their very life depended upon their victory, playing in the fastest basketball game of the inter-church basketball league and with a tenseness and determination which bordered on the verge of roughness, the Congregational church team surprised the Baptist church five winning the game at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Wednesday evening 9-5 which broke the tie for third place honors in the league.

The outcome of the game until the last whistle blew was in doubt and the players were spurred on to their utmost by the cheering mob of followers who yelled themselves hoarse.

There were many scrimmages, sometimes with three men down on the floor.

The game at the end of the first half stood 4-5 in favor of the Congregationalists. The Baptists in the second half could not find the basket and were not allowed a single point. The Congregationalists until the last minute of play had only a margin of 2 points. Spoon dropped in a basket, which clinched the game.

Summary:
Congregationalists, 9; Baptists, 5.
Palmer, Jr., 3; Smith, Jr., 3; Hummel, 2; Simpson, 2; Spoon, 2; Grady, 1; Paul, 1; Lloyd, 1; Grubb, 1.

Bankers' Whip Cong. Outfit
Turning the tables, the Rock county national bank employees defeated the Congregational church team in five innings by the score of 8 to 2 in a game played in the Fourth ward park Wednesday evening. The church team led until the fourth when the score was tied and the winning run batted in by the bankers.

Palmer pitched for the losing nine and Connors and Newlin for the bank nine. The two clubs will play the rubber game next week.

YOUNGSTERS CROWD SMALL CITY PARK TO PLAY BASEBALL

"All right gang, let's go!" "We'll hunt this boy wonder out of the box—get on some-hov."

The tall slender hurler, with his face only with perspiration buried the ball in his glove; undevoted, a few extraordinary contortions and then hurried the ball toward the plate.

"Ball-three," bawled the umpire, the only adult person sharing the game.

"Aw come-on, be reasonable," taunted a kid cooher.

An excited, nervous little lad danced back and forth at short stop wildly clapping his hands to the long and lean kid pitcher, who did his best to wrap his fingers around the "leagues" to throw a youthful curve ball.

The batter bunted. The little short-stop dashed up, grabbed the ball with one hand—and don't ever think these kids can't throw. The kid lined that ball over to first on a bee-line, but much faster than any bee can travel.

"Alla boy!" screamed his team-mates when the umpire called the erstwhile bunter out.

In the crowded and unimproved Fourth ward park this is a daily event during the afternoon and early evening. On Wednesday evening there were between 75 and 100 boys and youths—and even men—playing on the three improved diamonds.

The various teams and combinations fairly fought for space to play ball. There were kids hardly bigger than the last boys sought to swing, playing in a side plot. They could throw, catch and bat in a manner that amazed.

It was American youth at an American game, but all didn't have much chance to get in.

Along the edges of the park girls were tossing a plastic baseball and stopping to watch the boys, envious of their might in getting the best places in the park in which to play. There were three games in progress at one time, each interfering with the other.

Years ago the city refused to build a hard near the high school for a play grounds. Younger Janesville is still waiting and wishing for a decent place to play.

Where Can They Play?

Baseball interest among the amateurs—the boys, big and little—of Janesville is at a higher pitch this year than ever before. One league already has been formed among the seniors. The grammar school wheel is getting under way. A junior league is in the process of formation and the churches are talking of organizing. While at the same time there are any number of sandlot teams seen on the corner lots every day.

But there comes a hitch. Where are they going to play? The available places are limited. Which only goes to prove the contention long held that greater interest must be taken by the citizens of the city in providing playgrounds for the multitude.
